

REPLY TO ATTENTION OF

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
50TH SIGNAL BATTALION (EXPEDITIONARY)
FORT BRAGG, NORTH CAROLINA 28310-5000

AFZA-SAF-CDR

14 July 2014

Dear Incoming Soldier,

Welcome and congratulations on your assignment to the 50th Signal Battalion (Expeditionary)! You will soon become a member of a proud and distinguished organization dedicated to mission accomplishment and the preservation of our nation. The Battalion has a long and distinguished history participating in operations from World War I through the current Global War on Terrorism. You will continue to play a key role as we prepare to write the next page of that history!

Located at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, the 50th Signal Battalion (EXP) is one of the Army's newly organized Expeditionary Signal Battalions with a mission to provide rapidly deployable, secure and non-secure voice, data and visual communications (C4) support during joint and combined operations anywhere in the world. As a member of the 50th Signal Battalion Team, you will be challenged both physically and mentally throughout your tour here.

We also expect all Soldiers in this Battalion to know and live by the Army Values and Soldier's Creed. Be prepared to do so when you arrive!

Listed below is a website that provides some basic information on Fort Bragg and the surrounding community:

<http://www.bragg.army.mil/18abn/welcome.htm>

Your sponsor will contact you soon to provide additional information and assist with your relocation to Fort Bragg. If you have any questions or require assistance, please contact the Battalion Adjutant, CPT Christine Roumo at christine.roumo.mil@mail.mil. She can also be reached at 910-396-7023.

Once again, welcome to the 50th Signal Battalion Team!

"Key to Command!"

Sincerely,

Marlon Y. Anding
CSM, USA
Command Sergeant Major

William C. McDowell
LTC, SC
Commanding